

NAB Show NY: One Minute With... Wheatstone Corp.

By TVT Staff published September 09, 2022

TV Tech talks with Phil Owens about Wheatstone's participation in the upcoming show.

Phil Owens (Image credit: Future)

As NAB Show New York prepares to return to the Javits Center after several years away due to COVID-19, TV Tech caught up with Phil Owens, senior sales engineer at Wheatstone Corp. Attendees at the show can find Wheatstone in booth 1518 with the company's latest innovations.

TV Tech: What are you most looking forward to at NAB Show New York?

Phil Owens: As a regional East Coast show, NAB Show New York focuses on several very big markets (New York City, Washington, Philadelphia, Boston) and it's always a pleasure to personally connect with our clients and friends from these cities.

TVT: What will be Wheatstone's most important product news?

Owens: Our new Layers Software Suite, which runs on enterprise IP servers and includes full-function virtual radio and television consoles, as well as glass user interfaces for backend mixing, audio processing and streaming into a transmitter or CDN provider.

One server can host multiple broadcast instances, replacing dedicated hardware for many studios and locations—specifically audio mixing consoles, standalone audio processors and streaming appliances.

To learn more about the Layers Software Suite, visit the company's website.